

Going to Court

There are over 200 courthouses in Arizona. Some courts are state run and some are run by the federal government. The different types of state courts are Municipal, Justice, Superior, Appellate, and Supreme courts. Courts are able to help kids be adopted, protect people when they are being hurt, and enforce the law when someone breaks it.

Find and circle the 6 differences in the photos of a courthouse.

