

Scenario 1:

A student posts a screenshot of someone's private message and captions it, "Look how dumb this is 😂." Others begin reacting and commenting.

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?

Scenario 2:

A group of teammates in a group chat argues about who caused their team to lose. Multiple students start blaming each other, saying things like, "You missed the shot!" and "No, you passed it wrong!"

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?

Scenario 3:

During an online argument, one student insults another, and several others jump in saying, "You're so bad at everything!" or "Nobody wants you on their team."

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?

Scenario 4:

Several students create a group chat excluding one classmate.

They start sharing old embarrassing photos and making jokes about them, with multiple others laughing and encouraging each other.

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?

Scenario 5:

In a gaming chat, an argument escalates, and turns into, "Keep talking and see what happens tomorrow."

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?

Scenario 6:

After being asked to stop, a group posts angry comments, and some peers cheer them on, saying things like, "Go on, give them a piece of your mind!"

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?

Scenario 7:

A rumor starts about a student, and multiple classmates repost saying, "Everyone should unfollow them" or "No one should be friends with them."

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?

Scenario 8:

Two students argue online, and several others join in saying, "I swear if you say that again, we're going to handle it."

- What stage is this?
- What warning signs do you see?
- How should someone handle this right now?